Antoinette Brown Award To Highlight Synod

This month, during General Synod 13 in Rochester, N.Y., two women clergy will be honored with the Antoinette Brown Award. First awarded at General Synod 10, the Antoinette Brown Award every two years honors two outstanding women whose ministries exemplify the contributions that women can make through leadership in their profession.

Antoinette Brown, after whom the award was named, was the first ordained woman minister in America. She was 28 years old at the time of her ordination in the Congregational Church of South Butler, N.Y., in 1853.

Rev. Brown attended Oberlin College, where she was a classmate of the well-known suffragist Lucy Stone. Rev. Brown continued to preach after her marriage, and in 1902 she delivered the funeral oration of Elizabeth Cady Stanton, at whose home the first Woman's Rights convention had been held in 1848.

In 1908, Oberlin College conferred upon Rev. Brown the Doctor of Divinity degree. She preached her last sermon six years later, at age 90!

Aids Published to Assess Public Schools

In an effort to awaken people to the vital role of public education in American life, Pilgrim Press is publishing eight booklets that raise "substantive issues" about the public schools and provide means for thinking about their problems.

Entitled "The Education of the Public and the Public School," the series explains basic American principles for educating the public, discusses the multiple educational forces in American life, such as school, church, family, the media, and focuses on the public school as one of these forces.

The monographs discuss public schools

Atlanta's Children

How can such things be? I ask.
Why? Why, oh God must children die by cursed hands of perverted men?
Why, dear God, the children?
The deed is done for twenty-one and more!
Still more, by policemen's score!
When will it end for the children plucked from holes under bush and tree?
How can such things be?

UCC Survey Revealing

More than 60 percent of the persons who attend worship services of the United Church of Christ are women, nearly a third over the age of 60 and almost half have at least some college education.

These findings emerged from a three-year church membership inventory conducted by the Board for Homeland Ministries of the United Church of Christ. The survey was based on questionnaires completed by some 92,800 churchgoers in 1,200 congregations located in 12 of the denomination's conferences.

Of the many findings revealed by the study, the following have the greatest implications for church mission and evangelism:

—Of the women polled, only 12 percent described themselves as professionals while 42 percent listed themselves as homemakers.

—While women outnumber men in all categories, the absence of male worshippers was especially pronounced among those 20-40 and over 60.

—The number of UCC worshippers decreases proportionally with lowered age. Although 40 percent of the nation's over-15 population is 20-39, fewer than one-quarter of the churchgoers surveyed are in this age group.

—UCC churchgoers have an educational level considerably higher than that of the country as a whole, with 47 percent having completed two years of college or more.

—Almost 45 percent of those polled are either homemakers or retired. Among the others, 19 percent are professionals, 18

Interfaith Hunger Appeal Underway

You may soon see a series of advertisements in buses, subways, trains, newspapers and magazines, and on television and radio "spots," calling attention to the theme: "You are the Hope of the Hungry." This theme is featured this year as part of the ongoing, interfaith hunger appeal of Catholic Relief Services, the Joint Jewish Distribution Committee, and Church World Service.

The new advertising campaign will reach people not otherwise related to the church. All proceeds will be divided equally between the three sponsoring agencies and will be used for emergency relief efforts and longrange development programs—particularly programs to increase food production.

The funds thus received by Church World Service will supplement monies already given for such purposes by members of the United Church of Christ and other Protestant churches through the annual One Great Hour of Sharing all-church offering.

Fairfield Glade Dedicates Building

Fairfield Glade Community Church, Fairfield Glade, TN, dedicated their new church building in a Service of Consecration held in the sanctuary of the new church on Sunday, May 31, 1981.

Begun in 1976 as a new church start, Fairfield Glade is jointly affiliated with the United Church of Christ and the United Presbyterian churches. Representatives from both denominations were on hand from the Alabama-Tennessee Association and the St. Andrew's Presbytery to swell attendance at the Service of Consecration to over 275.

From its inception, Fairfield Glade has been housed in three different facilities, each of which it has outgrown. Now with its own building, the church can accommodate over 300 for worship. In

Convocation Enjoyed

Nearly 40 ministers and spouses gathered at St. Bernard Abbey in Cullman, AL for the 1981 Southeast Conference Minister's Convocation held Monday through Wednesday, May 4-6.

In addition to relaxation and fellowship, the Convocation offered participants the excitement of a stimulating seminar taught by Rev. Luther Kramer and entitled "Clergy Marriages: Turning Stress and Anger into Wow." Rev. Kramer is Director of the Center for Creative Living and Spiritual Growth in Huntsville, AL.

On Wednesday morning, the Convocation moved to St. John's Church, UCC in Cullman where denominational as well as conference issues were aired and discussed.

Chairman of this year's Convocation was Rev. Gene Keen, Huntsville, AL.

In Just One Minute

The following is taken from the report of the Presidential Commission on World Hunger, March, 1980:

"In the next 60 seconds, 233 babies will be born—136 in Asia, 39 in Africa, 23 in Latin America, and 35 in the rest of the world. Twenty-six of these will die in their first year of life—nine in Africa, five in Latin America, one in Europe, one in North America, and ten in Asia. Thirty-four more will die before the age of 15. Of the deaths, 50 to 75 percent can be attributed to a combination of malnutrition and infectious diseases. Many who do survive beyond the age of 15 will be stunted in growth and will suffer brain damage that can incapacitate them for life."

What can your church do to minister to those in need?

Moral Majority?

In his article "The Moral Majority, Arrogance from the Right," which appeared in the June-July issue of A.D. Magazine, theologian Roger Shinn writes: "Like Historian Edward Gibbon, who said that the Holy Roman Empire was neither holy nor Roman nor an empire, I suspect that the Moral Majority is neither moral nor a majority."

"It is a phenomenon of enough weight that it must not be ignored. It is important to try to understand our own history and ourselves better...In hard times people yearn for simple answers—and they pay the price."

percent in other white-collar jobs, 9 percent blue-collar, 8 percent students and 2 percent farmers.

Perhaps the most surprising statistic was that only 3 percent of UCC churchgoers are divorced or separated. Seventy percent are married, 17 percent are single and 10 percent are widowed.

According to UCBHM researcher Dr. William McKinney the survey's value is in the question it raises: "How can the churches become more attractive to men and to persons in their 20's and 30's?" "With one-third of the worshippers over 60, how well does the UCC meet the needs of its older members?" "Does the church have the potential to reach out to blacks and other minority persons who are poor?"

addition to the sanctuary—which can also be used as a fellowship hall—the spacious building includes kitchen facilities, a lounge, choir, office and nursery space.

Check Your Wires

According to a recent issue of Church Business Report, if your church was built or remodeled between 1965 and 1973, it's possible that the wiring used in the construction was made of aluminum.

At the time, 15 to 20 ampere aluminum wiring was thought to be a cheap and efficient alternative to copper. But it has now proved to be prone to overheating—which can cause fires.

Today, manufacturers deny any responsibility, but a government lawsuit is pending that would make them assume costs of repairs.

Here are some precautions you can take:

Check areas where electrical wiring is easily accessible to see if "Al" or "aluminum" is written on the wire's insulation. If so, the wiring is aluminum and should probably be replaced. But don't try to do it yourself—call an electrician.

More information on aluminum wiring can be obtained in a free booklet distributed by the Consumer Product Safety Commission, Washington, DC 20207.

AROUND THE CONFERENCE

First Congregational UCC, Chattanooga

From the Atlantic Ocean to the Mississippi River, from the Gulf of Mexico to the mountains of Tennessee, the Southeast Conference covers a broad expanse of territory. Contained within her boundaries are some 120 churches—widely diverse in heritage and religious expression—and yet united in the conviction that the churches of Jesus Christ "may all be one."

Representing those churches within the conference whose beginnings are closely related to the American Missionary Association is First Congregational Church, UCC in Chattanooga, TN.

Beginning with a Sunday School offered to blacks in the fall of 1866 by AMA missionaries from Massachusetts, a fellowship was formed, that on June 9, 1867 officially organized itself as First Congregational Church in Chattanooga.

After five years of rapid growth, the church's present property at Ninth and Lindsay was purchased. The church's present building was constructed and dedicated in 1905.

At the present time, the church is engaged in church revitalization through membership evaluation and recruitment. Ecumenical sharing with other churches and denominations is also another priority.

The church's pastor is the Rev. Andrew Frierson.

Students at Talladega College

Talladega Receives Support

Without your aid, the students grouped around the spiral staircase at Talladega College, Talladega, AL, might never have been able to go to college.

Through the Higher Education Program of the UCC Commission for Racial Justice, these students have received grant money to study at Talladega. Visions of working in the medical professions have now become real possibilities for these students, all of whom are majoring in biology.

Talladega College, which is located in the Southeast Conference, is one of the historic colleges founded in the South in the nineteenth century by the American Missionary Association, which is now related to our United Church Board for Homeland Ministries.

Through your past and present support, the United Church continues to enable those with ability to receive the education whose benefit is felt not only by the church, but by the community as well.
